

College of International Security Affairs

National Defense University

Bonnie R. Calabria

NCTC Visiting Faculty

Department of War and Conflict Studies

Education

- M.A., College of International Security Affairs, National Defense University: Strategic Security Studies (2012)
- B.A., New York University: European Studies, Middle Eastern Studies, and Politics (2004)

Research Interests

- Middle East Security Studies
- Terrorism & Counterterrorism
- Leadership Studies

BONNIE R CALABRIA is a Visiting Faculty member in the Department of War and Conflict Studies (WACS), College of International Security Affairs (CISA) of the National Defense University (NDU) in Washington, DC. During her academic experience at New York University, she worked in a variety of fields, including Sesame Workshop's International Department, a local Congresswoman's office, and the Foreign Policy Association. Her undergraduate thesis compared and contrasted the British and French models of governance in Iraq and Syria. She began her professional career in government as an intelligence analyst at the Defense Intelligence Agency where she focused on the Middle East. She joined the National Counterterrorism Center (NCTC) in 2008 as a senior terrorism analyst specializing in Levantine countries. Following her graduation from CISA in 2012 with a thesis examining the challenges and opportunities in domestic counterterrorism cooperation, she returned to NCTC as a team chief managing intelligence officers who analyzed terrorism trends in the Middle East.

