

Dr. David H. Ucko, is the director of the Combating Terrorism & Irregular Warfare (CTIW) Fellowship Program, and an associate professor, at the College of International Security Affairs (CISA), National Defense University. He oversees the delivery of the CTIW curriculum and the outreach efforts to build an international partnership of practitioners engaged with counter-terrorism, counterinsurgency, and irregular warfare. Dr. Ucko's research areas include political violence, insurgency and counterinsurgency, and war-to-peace transitions. He is the author of Counterinsurgency in Crisis: Britain and the Challenges of Modern Warfare (Columbia University Press, 2013), The New

Counterinsurgency Era: Transforming the U.S. Military for Modern Wars (Georgetown University Press, 2009) and co-editor of Reintegrating Armed Groups after Conflict (Routledge, 2009). He has also published on the United Nations, NATO, counterterrorism and counterinsurgency in a wide range of peer-reviewed journals. Dr. Ucko is also an adjunct professor at Johns Hopkins University, where he teaches a class on social movement theory and mobilization into terrorism, insurgency, and gangs. For several years, he worked as the program coordinator and as a research fellow at the Department of War Studies, King's College London, where he oversaw the Conflict, Security & Development Research Group (CSDRG). Prior to joining CISA, Dr. Ucko was a Transatlantic Post-Doctoral Fellow at the Stiftung Wissenschaft und Politik (SWP) in Berlin, Germany, and at the RAND Corporation in Washington DC. From 2001-03 he served as Deputy Defence Analyst (Armed Conflict) at the International Institute for Strategic Studies (IISS) office in London, where he helped create and develop the Armed Conflict Database. Dr. Ucko obtained his Doctoral and Masters degrees at the Department of War Studies, King's College London, during which time he enjoyed visiting fellowships at the Institute for National Strategic Studies (INSS), at NDU, and at the IISS office in Washington DC. He obtained his B.Sc. in International Relations at the London School of Economics & Political Science.